Tri-bowl

Using a unique style of architecture, Tri-bowl has the shape of three bowls put together. The structure looks like a cone hat put upside down, and is the world's first structure to be built in an inverted-shell structure in which the breadth widens from bottom to top. Tri-bowl stands for "sky(airport)," "ocean (port)" and "land metro transportation)." It also symbolizes Incheon Free Economic Zone comprised of the international business districts of Cheongna (leisure), Yeongjong (distribution) and Songdo (business). Tri-bowl is also a space for performances and exhibitions that can be viewed after making reservations. In 2010, Tri-bowl received the Architecture Culture Grand Prize of the Year at the Korean Architecture Awards The night view at the structure is especially beautiful. luring many visitors.
